4.1.1: The institution has adequate facilities for teaching - learning. viz., classrooms, laboratories, computing equipment, etc

The infrastructural requirements of a Homoeopathic Medical College are determined by the Minimum Standards set by the Apex Council periodically. The infrastructure in all departments exceeds the basic requirements by more than 20% to 40%.

The institute's physical and civil infrastructure consists of thirteen essential academic departments, each including sub-units such as the Head of Department office, faculty rooms, a museum, a departmental library, a demonstration room, and a postgraduate scholars discussion room. In order to improve the institution's ability to teach, learn, and evaluate, there is a dedicated Department of ICT that organizes regular co-curricular activities to educate students in computer applications. This training follows a certain syllabus and also provides training for the personnel. The Department of Yoga and Naturopathy focuses on an overlooked area of the Organon and Homoeopathy Philosophy. It offers instruction in the auxiliary aids used in Homoeopathic therapies, as well as in physically strengthened techniques. The department responsible for printing and reproduction at the university is known as Printing and Reprography. This department handles the printing of all college stationery, including laboratory journals, answer books, question papers, office supplies, and other printed or copied materials.

The college is equipped with four classrooms, one classroom that also serves as a seminar hall, one Auditorium, a total of thirteen departments including three supporting departments namely ICT, Printing and Reprography, and Naturopathy, four labs, and a well-organized library. The classrooms and Seminar Hall are equipped with contemporary amenities such as LCD projectors and audio-visual aids, which contribute to a conducive environment for successful teaching and learning. All of these amenities are expansive, well aerated, and well-lit.

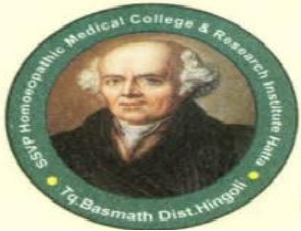

All instructional rooms are equipped with suitable computer installations, including LAN connectivity, and are compatible with modern teaching and learning tools such as Smart boards and screens. The College has two LCD Projectors, one located in the Seminar Hall and another in the 1st year BHMS classroom. The College has more than 65 desktop and laptop computers available to boost IT abilities. The Hub Centre is equipped with 15 computers that are used to conduct curriculum-oriented practical exams for several courses, namely computerized Repertorization using software repertories in Homeopathy. These amenities improve the process of teaching and learning.

The personal computers possess sufficient internet connection. The Local Area Network (LAN) is equipped with a connection speed of 100 megabits per second (mbps).

The institution also has a meticulously built board room that is equipped with state-of-the-art audio-video and multimedia capabilities.

The institution consistently strives to enhance its infrastructure in order to align with evolving technology and current demands. Recently, an initiative was launched to update and upgrade our infrastructure and meet the IT needs. Our infrastructure is constantly upgraded with consideration for the class comfort, instructional aids, and evolving technology.
