Description	The Seminar on Introduction to Research, conducted on March 15th and 16th, 2022, at SSVPHMC and Research Institute, attracted a diverse audience of 15 participants, including students, faculty, and aspiring researchers. This two-day event aimed to provide a foundational understanding of the research process, from conceptualization to execution. Expert speakers delivered informative presentations covering key aspects such as research design, methodology, and data analysis. Interactive workshops allowed participants to delve into practical exercises, facilitating hands-on learning experiences. The seminar fostered a collaborative environment, encouraging networking and the exchange of ideas among attendees. By introducing the basics of research, the event played a pivotal role in nurturing research literacy and cultivating the next generation of informed and skilled researchers at SSVPHMC and Research Institute..

Description	The Seminar on Classical Methods of Research held at SSVV Homeopathic Medical College and Research Institute from July 12th to July 13th, 2022, marked a significant academic endeavor, attracting 11 participants including students, faculty, and researchers. Over the two-day event, attendees delved into the historical evolution and contemporary relevance of classical research methodologies. Expert speakers presented comprehensive insights into time-tested approaches, emphasizing their impact on current research practices. Interactive sessions and workshops facilitated engaging discussions, allowing participants to explore the intricacies of classical research applications in the context of homeopathic medicine. The seminar aimed to bridge the gap between traditional and modern research paradigms, fostering a nuanced understanding among the participants. Furthermore, the collaborative environment encouraged knowledge exchange and networking, providing a platform for attendees to share experiences and perspectives. The event contributed significantly to the academic enrichment of the participants, emphasizing the enduring value of classical research methods in shaping the foundation of robust and credible research within the field of homeopathic medicine.

Description	As part of the Homeopathy Day celebration, SSVP Homeopathic Medical College and Research Institute organized a seminar on August 23, 2022, focused on osteoporosis awareness and prevention. The highlight of the event was the provision of free Bone Mineral Density (BMD) tests for patients at risk of osteoporosis. With 26 participants, including individuals at risk, healthcare professionals, and students, the seminar aimed to educate the community about osteoporosis and promote preventive measures. Expert speakers delivered insightful presentations on homeopathic approaches to osteoporosis management. The initiative to offer complimentary BMD tests underscored the institution's commitment to community health. This event not only celebrated Homeopathy Day but also demonstrated a dedication to proactive healthcare by identifying and addressing potential health risks, contributing to the overall well-being of the attendees.
